Announced PRESS RELEASE Bloomsburg, Pa., March 13, 2013 - The fine folks over at 505 Games have announced their upcoming Holiday 2014 title, Rite of Passage: Hide and Seek - Collector's Edition, which releases for PC on 28th November 2013. The game will be available for pre-order on Amazon and other retailers. Below is a brief description of the game and trailer along with screenshots of the Bonus Game. The Collector's Edition of Rite of Passage: Hide and Seek puts players into a role of an enterprising young clerk who investigates rumors of a child murder in nineteenth century Auvergne. With help from his aptly named sidekicks, Tenny and Gnädchen, players search for evidence to capture the killer and clear the family's name. But the killer is not what he or she seems... Rite of Passage: Hide and Seek is a cooperative point-and-click adventure game with branching narrative path. Up to 3 players work together to explore the medieval Ardèche, solving puzzles and interact with characters that help or hinder players' progress through the game. Lumos Interactive's score, which has been met with critical acclaim (White Sands Game Festival, PAX West, IndieCade, San Diego Comic Con) are working on the music for Rite of Passage: Hide and Seek. We are using the nEXO LS laser linker to connect an nSight NEO cube (or any similar) head and a PS4 controller via bluetooth. We also need three parallel ESC's, that will be also connected to

Sony Dual Flight Controller. Our biggest problem is to find a sufficiently small and cheap Arduino board that can be connected to Dual flight controller for receiving and modifying all the signals that are sent over from the nEXO linker. I have found this x-duino board that seems to be good for our purpose but I'm not 100% sure if it's technically compatible with the nEXO and Dual flight controller. Does anybody happen to have an experience with that board? Do I have any further options here? Most of the time you should be able to get your Arduino working with up to 4Mbs of data to it. However, performance is much better on commodity/commercial boards that have USB or Firewire interfaces, like the avion. Connecting the Arduino directly to the nEXO 6Mbs interface is not a good idea,
